

No need for nerves...

CRMC is here to help 24/7.

Marlon Thornburg has been fortunate. His last trip to the emergency room was more than 20 years ago. That all changed a few weeks back when Marlon was traveling home from Topeka and he started to feel unwell. He was able to get an appointment that same day at the CRMC Medical Group with Heather Pollett, APRN. After some blood work and a CAT scan, Heather discovered Marlon had a kidney stone. He was prescribed medications and sent home in hopes that the stone would pass on it's own.

Unfortunately, the stone didn't cooperate and excruciating pain warranted a trip to the emergency room at CRMC where Marlon was examined and treated by Dr. Carson. The kidney stone would need to be surgically removed.

Marlon was nervous and glad he didn't have to wait long for relief. Surgery was scheduled with Dr. Howerter the following morning. Marlon arrived at CRMC at 7 a.m., had his surgery, and was back home resting comfortably by 10:30 a.m.

When you go to the hospital, it's natural to be nervous, especially if you've never had surgery before. You're worried about how everything is going to work and what to expect.

My experience at CRMC was positive from start to finish. Everyone was so reassuring and that made a positive impression on my wife and me.

It was a huge relief to come out of surgery and know immediately that Dr. Howerter and the capable staff at CRMC fixed the problem.

When I think back to the whole situation and the excruciating pain I was in, I don't think I could have endured a lengthy car ride over rough roads to get to a big city hospital. I'm thankful that CRMC, the staff and Dr. Howerter were right here in Coffeyville.

I'm a member of the CRMC Foundation Board of Trustees, so I know many of the people who work at the hospital and a lot about what goes on there. Now I know what it's like to be a patient, too. I'm even more proud of the services that CRMC provides to our community since I've had the chance to experience them first-hand.
